This volume grew out of the Wittgenstein Colloquium held in London, Ontario, Canada commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of Wittgenstein's death on 29 April 1951. Some of the papers appear as they were given but others, including those by Dr Blackwell and Professors Cioffi, Stenius and Winch, have been substantially revised or expanded. It is regretted that, for various reasons, not all the papers given there are included in this volume.

I would like to express my appreciation to my colleague, Bill Demopoulos, who gave me valuable advice on a number of matters and to Connie Varner for her help in editing some of the material. Mr Kai Halweg aided me in taping the sessions of the Colloquium. I owe a debt of gratitude to Penny Lister who industriously typed through various drafts and redrafts.

I take this opportunity to thank the Canada Council for a grant in support of the Colloquium and to thank Dr John Rowe, Dean of the Faculty of Arts at the University of Western Ontario, whose encouragement and support made the Colloquium possible.
