

Index

- Acceleration equation
  - OPEC balance of payments, 183
  - supply-demand model, 129
- Appreciation of currency. See also specific currency
  - and current account surpluses, 60
  - and inflation, 47
  - jointly floating currency area, 333–335, 338
  - monetarist model, 88
  - monetary approach, 46
  - Mundell-Fleming model, 52, 54
  - and relative income, 49
  - supply constrained economies, 416
  - supply-demand model, 118, 126, 128
  - wealth, domestic, increases in, 96
- Arbitrage
  - foreign exchange market, 118
  - supply constrained economies, 409
- Asset market model, 32, 84–86, 385
  - assumptions of, 85
  - dollar depreciation, 86
  - equilibrium model, 199–200, 204–205
  - Eurodollar market, 375–376
  - Eurodollar market under fixed exchange rates, 362–365
  - Eurodollar market under flexible exchange rates, 370–371
  - expectations and exchange rates, 17
  - flexible exchange rates, 86, 313–318, 370–371
  - implied regression coefficients of competing equations, 103
  - interdependence under flexible exchange rates, 313–318
  - jointly floating currency area, 333
  - monetary approach (see Monetary approach)
  - Mundell-Fleming model, 52
  - OPEC policies, 193
  - organized asset markets, 10
  - portfolio-balance model (see Portfolio-balance model)
  - supply-demand model compared, 117
- Asset price determination, 5. See also Prices
  - national price indices compared, 28, 32
  - volatility of prices, 28
- Asset substitutability
  - Mundell-Dornbusch model, 254, 255
- Auction markets, 10
- Balance of payments. See also specific country
  - announcement effect of unexpected figures, 96
  - equity claims to capital (see Equity claims to capital)
  - international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
  - J-curve problem (see J-curve problem)
  - model of energy, flexible exchange rate, 201, 205
  - Mundell-Fleming model, 51, 53, 54
  - and oil price increases, 186, 205
  - supply-demand model (see Supply-demand model)
- Balance of trade. See Goods markets
- Beggar thy neighbor policy, 193
  - interdependence under flexible exchange rates, 325
  - jointly floating currency area, 330, 336
- Belgium, 341
- Bickerdike-Robinson-Machlup model
  - supply-demand model compared, 124

- Bond portfolios. See also Portfolio-balance model allocation between countries, 96 and domestic wealth increases, 96
 monetarist model, 87–88
 perfect capital mobility, 86
 perfect substitutability, 86, 96, 101, 258
- Borrowing in foreign currency
 supply-demand model, 151–154
- Bundesbank Eurodollar transaction. See Eurodollar market
- Canada
 appreciation of currency, 523–524 characteristics roots of model, 522 errors of in-sample forecasts of model, 521 fixed exchange rates, 509, 523–524
 flexible exchange rates, 509, 523–524
 foreign demand and Canadian real output, 523 interdependence of industrial countries, 524
 international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model) leaning against the wind, 523 model of international disturbances transmission, 500–513 parameter estimates for model, 513–522 price levels, transmission of, 523 private sector adjustments, 524 spillover of disequilibrium, 503–504, 523 tariffs (see Tariffs)
- Capital
 equity claims to (see Equity claims to capital) long-run labor-capital ratio, 207 oil prices and capital accumulation, 192 oil prices and intensity decline, 208, 212
- Capital accounts
 current account interaction with, supply-demand model, 124 and exchange rate, 118–119 financing through short-term capital flows, 76–77 invoicing and current accounts, 385–386
- Capital mobility
 asset market model, 84
 current account imbalances, financing of, 73–75 cyclical variations stabilized by, 76–77 financing of capital accounts through, 76–77 fixed rates and perfect mobility, 251
 Fleming-Mundell model, 341
 flexible exchange rates, 341 freedom of capital movements, 76–77 interdependence of countries, 341 and interest rate policy, 75–76
 jointly floating currency area, 334, 342 money-market equilibrium and fiscal policy, 255
 Mundell-Dornbusch model, 254–255
 perfect capital mobility, 84, 86, 89, 251 portfolio-balance model equation, 98 short-term, elimination of, 76
 supply constrained economies, 409
 supply-demand model, 117–118
- Central banks intervention in foreign exchange markets, 312 once-and-for-all sale of foreign exchange, 122–123, 133–134
- Commodities markets. See Goods markets
- Commodities prices. See Prices
- Consumer goods. See Goods markets
- Consumer price indices, 9–11 and appreciation of currency, 47 and nominal money balances, 259 and wages, 203, 216
- Corden formula, 479, 492, 496
- Cost of living indices average absolute monthly percentage, 29
 oil and nonoil goods, 226
 purchasing power parities, 29–30
- Currency. See also specific currency appreciation (see Appreciation of currency) depreciation (see Depreciation of currency) devaluation (see Devaluation of currency) invoice currency (see Invoicing) portfolio substitution (see Currency substitution model)
- Currency substitution model anticipated component of monetary policy, 164, 166 demand for real balances, 159–160 determination of exchange rates, 164–167 elasticity of substitution equal to two, 165–167 empirical studies, 167–170
 global perspective, 157–158 market clearing prices, 161–162 monetary model with rational expectations, 158–159

- perfect substitution, 165–166
- spot exchange rate variances, 169
- unanticipated component of monetary policy, 164–166
- unitary elasticity of substitution, 165–167
- usefulness of theory, 172
- volatility of exchange rates, 170–171
- Current accounts. See also specific country
  - announcement effect of unexpected figures, 96
  - and appreciation of currency, 60
  - balances as GNP percent, 73
  - capital account interaction with, supply-demand model, 124
  - deficits and exchange rates, 93, 95
  - and depreciation of currency, 60
  - and dollar depreciation, 93
  - Dutch disease, 239–240
  - and exchange rates, 385–386, 400
  - and foreign exchange markets, 96
  - imbalances, and shifts in wealth, 61
  - imbalances, financing of, 74–75
  - and interest rate policy, 74
  - invoicing and capital accounts, 385–386, 400
  - J-curve, 384, 386
  - monetary model and oil prices, 95
  - money-market equilibrium (see Money-market equilibrium)
  - Mundell-Fleming model, 52–53, 55–56
  - news, effect of on exchange rate, 386
  - and oil prices, 95, 222
  - and oil production, 239–240
  - supply-demand model, 118, 126
  - and unanticipated depreciation, 75
- Cyclical variables
  - capital flows promoting stability, 76–77
  - and exchange rates, 60
  - flexible exchange rates, 402
  - interest rates, 72
  - and intervention, 70
- Deindustrialization
  - defined, 242
  - Dutch disease (see Dutch disease)
  - oil price shock, 224
- Demand determined output
  - Mundell-Fleming model, 51–53, 56
- Demand for money. See Supply and demand for money
- Denmark, 341
- Depreciation of currency. See also specific currency
  - anticipated and unanticipated, 15, 18, 56, 58–59
  - Bickerdiike-Robinson-Machlup model, 124
  - and current account surpluses, 60, 75
  - and cyclical expansion, 60
  - expectation of in Mundell-Fleming model, 54
  - and interest rates, 18, 49, 70, 75
  - jointly floating currency area, 337, 340
  - monetarist model, 88
  - monetary approach, 46–47
  - Mundell-Fleming model, 52, 54
  - nonzero expected rate of depreciation, 89
  - and oil prices, 216
  - overshooting model, 89
  - portfolio-balance model and intervention, 105
  - and risk premium, 68
  - and spot exchange rate, 15
  - supply constrained economies, 404, 416
  - supply-demand model, 118, 124, 126, 128
  - unanticipated depreciation, 56, 58–59
  - wages, effect on, 203
- Design of exchange rate and payments system, 75
- Deutsche mark
  - appreciation and portfolio diversification, 64
  - appreciation in 1978, 95
  - depreciation, 1979–1980, 95
  - Eurodollar market (see Eurodollar market)
  - exchange rates (see specific exchange rate)
  - intervention and unanticipated depreciation, 70
  - and oil prices, 95
  - OPEC investment in, 182–185
  - and portfolio diversification, 63–64
  - portfolio model, and unanticipated appreciation, 61
  - risk-premium model and appreciation of, 66
- Devaluation of currency
  - jointly floating currency area, 331, 333
  - and tariffs, 494–498
- Disinflation
  - dynamic adjustment, 234–235
  - and oil shock, 230
- DM/dollar exchange rates. See Dollar/DM exchange rates
- DM/franc exchange rates. See Franc/DM exchange rates

- DM/pound exchange rates. See Pound/DM exchange rates
- Dollar
- appreciation in 1979–1980, 95
  - asset market model of depreciation, 86
  - current account deficit and depreciation, 93
  - Eurodollar market (see Eurodollar market)
  - IMF's nominal and real effective exchange rates, 48
  - interest rates and exchange rates, 16, 93
  - intervention and unanticipated depreciation, 68
  - monetary model and depreciation, 92
  - 1978 depreciation, 93
  - oil prices and demand for, 95
  - OPEC spending (see OPEC)
  - overvaluation in the 1960s, 76
  - unanticipated depreciation, 58
- Dollar, Canadian. See Canada
- Dollar/DM exchange rates, 6
- efficiency of foreign exchange market, 7ff
  - and empirical studies of monetary model, 92
  - forward rates and the cost of living, 12–13
  - and inflation rates, 10–11
  - monetary approach, 50
  - overshooting model, 94
  - portfolio-balance model, 99–100
  - predicted and realized percentage, 10–11
  - purchasing power parities, 26, 29
  - spot rates and the cost of living, 12–13
  - synthesis of monetary and portfolio-balance equations, 104
  - unanticipated depreciation, 59–60
  - and wholesale price indices, 29
- Dollar/franc exchange rates, 6
- efficiency of foreign exchange, 7
  - purchasing power parities, 26
- Dollar/pound exchange rates, 6
- efficiency of foreign exchange, 7
  - purchasing power parities, 26
- Dollar/yen exchange rates
- unanticipated depreciation, 59, 60
- Dornbusch version of Mundell model. See Mundell-Dornbusch model
- Durable asset prices and future expectations, 10
- Dutch disease
- current account balance, 239–240
  - defined, 222
  - oil price increases, 222–223, 235–237
  - and OPEC, 215
  - United Kingdom, 223
- Efficient markets. See Foreign exchange market
- Employment
- classical unemployment, 409, 411, 414
  - and German intervention, 70
  - and interest rate differentials, 72
  - international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
  - jointly floating currency area, 342
  - long-run capital-labor ratio, 207
  - Mundell-Fleming model, 52, 55
  - nontraded goods, effect of, 223
  - oil price or discovery shock, 224
  - oil prices and labor market equilibrium, 202–203, 205, 212, 215–216
  - real wages and unemployment, 216
  - supply constrained labor markets, 403
- Energy prices. See Oil prices
- England. See United Kingdom
- Equilibrium and disequilibrium characterizations, 402
- Equity claims to capital
- balance of payments and, 194, 196
  - flexible model of energy, 201
  - perfect substitutability in portfolios, 199
  - and wealth, 206–207
- Equity markets, function of, 192
- Eurobanks. See Eurodollar market
- Eurocurrency market. See Eurodollar market
- Eurodollar market
- asset demands, 374–376
  - asset demands under fixed exchange rates, 362–365
  - asset demands under flexible exchange rates, 370, 371
  - equilibrium conditions, 355, 357, 358, 374
  - fixed exchange rate model, 360–366
  - flexible exchange rate model, 367–374
  - goods markets, 375–377
  - goods markets under fixed exchange rates, 365–366
  - goods markets under flexible exchange rates, 371–374
  - interest on required reserves, 359
  - interest rates, 352–355
  - model of economic interactions, 351–359
  - reserve requirements on deposits, 350–351, 358–359, 374–375, 377
  - stabilization of home output, 376–377

- European Monetary System, 4, 27 interdependence of members, 341
- Exchange rate. See also, e.g., Fixed exchange rate; Flexible exchange rate asset price determination, 5 fiscal policy (see Fiscal policy) interest rates and, 4, 5, 15, 17–18, 24 monetary policy (see Monetary policy) and prices, 5
tariffs (see Tariffs)
- Expectations as to exchange rates
asset market model, 17
current exchange rate, 11, 13
interdependence under flexible exchange rates, 318–323
jointly floating currency area, 331–332 market anticipation of changes, 187–189
Mundell-Fleming model, 51
and OPEC spending, 189 rational expectations, 163–164 (see also Rational expectations model)
and spot exchange rate, 162
static expectations, 262
- Exports. See Goods markets
- Federal Reserve Eurodollar transactions.
See Eurodollar market
- Fiscal policy
assumptions concerning, 261 exchange rates, effect on, 251 fixed and flexible rates, 251 increase in public spending and rational expectations, 273, 274
international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model) jointly floating currency area (see Jointly floating currency area) long-run effects under open-economy model, 277–281 model of flexible exchange rates and monetary policy, 258–262 and money-market equilibrium, 257, 258
Mundell-Dornbusch model, 253–254
open-economy model and static expectations, 264 supply constrained economies (see Supply constrained economies)
- Fixed exchange rate, 286. See also specific country
domestic monetary disturbance, 305–306
domestic monetary disturbance in small open economy, 300
Eurodollar market model, 360–366
fiscal policy, 251
flexible exchange rate compared, 304–306 foreign disturbances, 305–306
monetary policy, 251
nominal exchange rates, 75
optimal intervention policy, 307
perfect capital mobility, 251
stability properties of, 304–306
- Fleming-Mundell model and capital mobility, 341 jointly floating currency area compared, 336, 341
- Flexible exchange rate, 67–75, 86, 286.
See also specific country
asset market model, 86
capital mobility, 341
and current accounts, 385–386, 400 domestic disturbances, 305–306
domestic monetary disturbance in small open economy, 301
domestic policy, 318–325
Eurodollar market model, 367–374
fiscal policy, 251
fixed exchange rate compared, 304–306
foreign disturbances, 305, 306
foreign reactions to domestic policy, 318, 321–325 interdependence under, 312–325
international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model) jointly floating currency area (see Jointly floating currency area) model of energy prices and two-country growth, 194–196, 204–206, 218 model of fiscal and monetary policy, 258–262
monetary policy, 251 necessity for, 76
optimal intervention policy, 307 perfectly flexible rate, 307
portfolio diversification, 61
price interactions, 312–313, 323–325 (see also Prices) small open economy, 304
stability properties of, 304–306
synchronous cyclical movements, 402
tariffs (see Tariffs) variability of, 84
volatility of, 158
- Flexible-price monetary model. See Monetarist model
- Floating exchange rates. See Flexible exchange rate

- Flow model
  - assumptions of, 85
  - implied regression coefficients of
    - competing equations, 103
- Foreign exchange market
  - arbitrage, 118
  - and current accounts, 96
  - efficiency of, 5–9, 32, 157, 193
  - intermediation, 118
  - intervention in (see Intervention)
  - supply and demand (see Supply and demand for money)
  - supply constrained economies model, 408
  - supply-demand model (see Supply-demand model)
- Foreign investment. See Investment
- Forward exchange contract, 385
  - invoicing and, 386, 391–392
- Forward exchange rate
  - average absolute monthly percentage, 28
  - and future spot exchange rate, 6, 10
  - and spot rate, 13, 18
  - volatility of, 32
- Franc/DM exchange rates
  - purchasing power parities, 26
- Franc/dollar exchange rates. See Dollar/franc exchange rates
- France, 341
  - international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
- Future spot exchange rate
  - and forward exchange rate, 6, 10
- Germany
  - capital account surplus, 64
  - current account balances, 66
  - current account balances as percent of GNP, 74
  - deutsche mark (see Deutsche mark)
  - direct investment and portfolio investment deficit, 64
  - Eurodollar deposits (see Eurodollar market)
  - European Monetary System, 341
  - imports by compared to OPEC imports, 181
  - interest rate differentials of U.S.
    - compared, 71–72
  - interest rates and monetary models, 92
  - international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
  - intervention, determinants of, 69–70
  - monetary growth, 92
  - net government borrowing, 66
  - OPEC balance of payments, 182–184
  - tariffs (see Tariffs)
  - U.S./German government debt, 66
- Gold prices
  - and future expectations, 31
  - futures, 13–15
  - spot, 13, 15
  - volatility of, 13–14
- Goods markets
  - Canadian model (see Canada)
  - and cost of living, 226
  - deficits in trade balance, 25
  - employment and nontraded goods, 223
  - Eurodollar market, 375–377
  - Eurodollar market under fixed exchange rates, 365–366
  - Eurodollar market under flexible exchange rates 371–374
  - hedging (see Hedging)
  - industrial countries vs. OPEC, 181
  - inflation and interest rates, 72
  - interdependence under flexible exchange rates, 313–318
  - international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
  - invoicing (see Invoicing)
  - jointly floating currency area, 332–333, 338–339
  - monetarist model, 88
  - nonoil and oil goods, 226, 241
  - nontraded goods, effect of, 223
  - oil as intermediate good, 223, 226, 241
  - and oil prices, 185–186, 211, 222–223, 240
  - and oil quantity shock, 226–228, 240
  - overshooting model, 89
  - supply constrained economies, 404, 409, 411, 415–416
  - supply-demand model (see Supply-demand model)
  - tariffs (see Tariffs)
- Government spending. See Fiscal policy
- Grassman's rule, 384–386, 389–400
- Gross national product
  - current account balances as percent of, 73
- Hedging
  - and invoicing, 384, 391–392, 400
  - portfolio diversification, 392
- Household model, 204

- consumption equilibrium, 207
- and oil prices, 196–198, 204, 211
- output market equilibrium, 200, 205
- Imports. See Goods markets
- Income
  - actual, 226
  - and discovery of domestic oil reserves, 230
  - international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
  - jointly floating currency area stabilization, 334–341
  - oil prices and quantity, effect of, 226, 227
  - oil production and prices, effect of, 241
  - permanent, 226
  - real, 226
  - stability of fixed vs. flexible exchange rates, 306
  - supply constrained economies, 404, 415–416
- Industrialization. See Deindustrialization
- Inflation
  - and appreciation of currency, 47
  - Canadian model (see Canada)
  - disinflation (see Disinflation)
  - dollar/DM exchange rate, 10–11
  - expectation of and currency cost, 55
  - and German intervention, 70
  - import prices and interest rates, 72
  - interdependence under flexible exchange rates, 318–325
  - and interest rates, 17–18, 70, 72
  - and invoicing, 393, 396
  - monetarist model, 88
  - monetary model, 93
  - news, 19
  - and nominal effective exchange rates, 48
  - and nominal money supply, 226
  - and oil price shock, 224
  - supply constrained economies (see Supply constrained economies)
  - supply-demand model of inflation/balance of payments equilibrium, 135
- Information. See also News
  - efficient markets theory, 157
  - and exchange rates, 11
  - and future expectations, 10
  - prices and monetary model with rational expectations, 159
- Interdependence of industrial countries
  - Canadian model, 524
  - and capital mobility, 341
  - European Monetary System members, 341
  - and flexible exchange rates, 312–325 (see also Jointly floating currency area)
- Interest rates
  - anticipated changes in, 5
  - and capital flows, 75–76
  - and current account imbalances, 74
  - cyclical variables, 72
  - demand for money and nominal interest rates, 259
  - and depreciation of currency, 18, 49, 70
  - domestic rate of interest, 226
  - and empirical studies of monetary model, 92
  - equilibrium of capital in Mundell-Fleming model, 54
  - estimates of determinants of international differentials, 71
  - Eurodollar deposits (see Eurodollar market)
  - and exchange rates, 4–5, 15, 17–18, 24
  - exchange rates and one-month rate differential, 20–21
  - exchange rates and twelve-month rate differential, 22–23
  - foreign disturbances and foreign rates, 341
  - foreign exchange value of domestic currency, 17
  - and import prices, 72
  - and inflation, 32, 70, 72
  - and inflationary expectations, 17–18
  - international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
  - and intervention, 73, 75
  - jointly floating currency area, 333–334, 340
  - liquidity preference theory, 117
  - long-term rates, 49
  - monetarist model, 88
  - and monetary approach, 46, 49
  - Mundell-Fleming model, 51–52, 56
  - and news, 19
  - overshooting model, 89–90
  - and risk premium, 67
  - and spot exchange rate, 17, 24
  - stabilization of exchange rates, 74
  - unanticipated changes in, 5, 32, 58, 60
  - and unanticipated depreciation, 75
  - and value of dollar, 93
- Intermediation in foreign exchange market, 118

- International Monetary Fund
  - Articles of Agreement, 4
  - effective exchange rate of, 48
- International Standard Industrial Classification
  - categories of world industry, 475–476
- International transmission of monetary disturbances
  - Mark III model (see Mark III model)
  - Mark IV model (see Mark IV model)
- Intervention, 68, 312. See also specific country
  - cyclical variables, 70
  - fixed exchange rate (see Fixed exchange rate)
  - flexible exchange rate (see Flexible exchange rate)
  - and interest rates, 73, 75
  - leaning against the wind (see Leaning against the wind)
  - leaning with the wind (see Leaning with the wind)
  - optimal intervention, 286–287
  - optimal intervention in small open economy, 289, 296–304, 306–307
  - portfolio-balance model of depreciation, 105
  - stable intervention defined, 294
  - stable intervention in small open economy, 295–296, 298–299
  - and unanticipated depreciation, 68, 70
  - unstable intervention defined, 294
  - unstable intervention in small open economy, 294–295, 297–298
- Investment
  - and oil price increases, 192, 198–199, 204, 212
  - portfolio diversification, 63–64
- Invoicing
  - capital accounts, 385–386
  - currency choice, 390–400
  - current accounts, 385–386, 400
  - forward exchange contracts, 385–386, 391–392
  - Grassman's rule, 384–386, 389–400
  - and hedging, 384, 391–392, 400
  - indifference curve, 392–399
  - and inflation, 393, 396
  - international markets, 389
  - market power, 398–399
  - optimizing model of invoicing decision, 387
  - practices, 384, 389
  - purchasing power parities, 389
  - risk aversion, 392, 395, 398, 400
  - separation theorem, 387, 389
- Italy, 341
- international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
- J-curve problem
  - Mark IV international transmission model, 428
  - supply-demand model, 142
- Japan
  - current account balances as percent of GNP, 74
  - interest rate differentials of U.S. compared, 71–72
  - international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
  - intervention, determinants of, 69–70
  - tariffs (see Tariffs)
- Jointly floating currency area. See also Interdependence of industrial countries, and flexible exchange rates
  - appreciation of currency, 333–335, 338
  - asset market model, 333
  - beggar thy neighbor policy, 330, 336
  - capital mobility, 342
  - depreciation of currency, 337, 340
  - devaluation of currency, 331, 333
  - expectations as to exchange rate, 331–332
  - fiscal expansion and contraction, 330, 333–341
  - Fleming-Mundell model compared, 336, 341
  - goods market equilibrium, 333, 338–339
  - income, 334–341
  - interest rates, 333–334, 340
  - labor movements, 342
  - model, 329–332
  - perfect capital mobility, 334
  - stabilization policy, 333–338
- Labor. See Employment
- Leaning against the wind, 288
  - Canada, 523
  - domestic monetary disturbance in small open economy, 301
  - foreign monetary disturbance in small open economy, 303
  - optimal intervention in small open economy, 304
  - optimal intervention policy, 306

- Leaning with the wind, 289
   domestic monetary disturbance in small open economy, 301
   foreign output demand disturbance in small open economy, 302 foreign output supply disturbance in small open economy, 303
   optimal intervention in small open economy, 304
   optimal intervention policy, 306
 Liquidity preference theory of interest rate determination, 117 Luxembourg, 341
- Machlup. See Bickerdike-Robinson-Machlup model
- Macroeconomic shocks of supply constrained economies. See Supply constrained economies
- Manufacturing. See also Goods markets deindustrialization (see Deindustrialization) demise of manufacturing sector, 223
   Dutch disease (see Dutch disease)
   invoicing (see Invoicing) nonoil goods defined, 241–242 oil price or discovery, effect of, 222–223, 240
- Mark III model described, 427–428, 430, 468
   simulation version (see Mark IV model)
- Mark IV model asset substitution channel, 431 balance of payments, 430–431 base dynamic simulation, 436
   British money shock experiments, 459, 466 channels of transmission, 431, 436
   described, 428, 430–431, 436, 468
   domestic effects of real government spending shocks, 428 export shocks, 431
   flexible exchange rate, 428
   foreign price levels, 431
   German money shock experiments, 458–459, 466 government spending, 431
   income, 430–431
   international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
   J-curve phenomenon and import demand inelasticity, 428 monetary linkages with U.S., 427–428 money supply shocks, 431 nominal interest rates, 431 oil prices, 431
   pegged exchange rates, 427–428
   results of simulations, 468 standard errors of estimate, 432–433, 436 summary of structure, 429–430
   U.S. money shock experiments, 436, 443, 450–451, 458–459, 466 unemployment, 431
- Modigliani consumption function, 96
- Monetarist model, 86–89
   anticipated and unanticipated disturbances, 89
   assumptions of, 85
   empirical studies, 92
   equation, 101
   equation of exchange rate determination, 88
   implied regression coefficients of competing equations, 103
- Monetary approach, 47–50
   assumptions of, 85
   criticism of, 117
   currency substitution model (see Currency substitution model) current accounts and oil prices, 95
   described, 46, 86
   and dollar depreciation, 92
   empirical studies, 92–93
   equation of money demand function, 87
   flexible price monetary model (see Monetarist model)
   implied regression coefficients of competing equations, 103
   inflation and currency appreciation, 47 monetarist model (see Monetarist model) overshooting model (see Overshooting model) regression equations, 48–50 sticky price monetary model (see Overshooting model) synthesis of portfolio-balance and monetary equations, 101–105
   usefulness of theory, 51
- Monetary disinflation. See Disinflation
- Monetary policy
   disinflation (see Disinflation)
   domestic policy, 318–325
   fixed exchanged rate (see Fixed exchange rate)
   flexible exchange rate (see Flexible exchange rate)

- Monetary policy (cont.)
 foreign reactions to domestic policy, 318, 321–325 intervention (see Intervention) jointly floating currency area (see Jointly floating currency area)
 long-run effects under open-economy model, 277–281 model of flexible exchange rates and fiscal policy, 258–262 and oil shocks, 224, 242–243 prices and policy interdependence (see Prices)
 Money. See Currency
 Money demand or supply. See Supply and demand for money Money-market equilibrium. See also Open-economy model adjustment with flexible price of domestic output, 274–283
 and exchange rate, 256–258 fiscal policy and perfect capital mobility, 255 fiscal policy effects, 257–258, 277–281 flow equilibrium, 256
 instantaneous equilibrium, 256
 long-run effects of monetary and fiscal policy, 277–281 long-run equilibrium, 256, 265, 269 open-market purchase and rational expectations, 272 public spending increase and rational expectations, 273 rational expectations, 270–274
 rational expectations and flexible domestic price level, 281–283 short-run effect of open-market purchase, 265, 268 short-run equilibrium under static expectations, 273 static expectations and open-economy model, 264 Mundell model, 89–90, 251
 open-economy model version, 262
 Mundell-Dornbusch model, 252
 asset substitutability, 254–255
 capital mobility, 254–255
 criticism of, 251
 fiscal policy effects, 253–254
 money-market equilibrium and exchange rates, 256 open-economy model compared, 262–274 and portfolio-balance model, 255, 257
 Mundell-Fleming model, 51–55
 extended model, 51–52
 news form test, 56–60
 Neo-Keynesian open-economy model. See Open-economy model Netherlands, 341
 international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
 tariffs (see Tariffs)
 News
 and aggregate price levels, 27
 asset price determination, 28
 current accounts and exchange rates, 386 exchange rate determination, 18–19, 24, 32 inflationary expectations, 19 interest rate changes, 19
 Mundell-Fleming model, 52, 55–60
 risk-premium model, 67
 Official intervention. See Intervention
 Oil as intermediate good, 223, 226, 241
 Oil consumption and oil prices, 187
 Oil discovery shock. See Oil quantity shock Oil prices. See also OPEC balance of payments, 186, 201, 205
 capital accumulation, 192 capital intensity decline, 208, 212 comparative statics, 206–209 and consumption of oil, 187
 and current accounts, 95, 222
 deindustrialization, 224
 and depreciation of currency, 216 deutsche mark, effect on, 95
 and disinflation, 230
 domestic production of energy, 213–214 (see also Oil quantity shock)
 Dutch disease, 222–223, 235–237
 dynamic adjustment, 240
 employment, effect of oil shock on, 224 equilibrium effect of increase in, 210–216
 and exchange rates, 179
 and goods markets, 185, 211, 222–223, 240
 household model, 196, 197, 198, 204, 211
 income, effect on, 226, 227, 241 increase, effect of, 179, 185–187, 191, 221–222, 230, 232–233 inflation, acceleration of, 224
 interdependence under flexible exchange rates, 325

- international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
- investment model of firm, 198–199, 204, 212
- labor market equilibrium, 202, 203, 205, 212, 215–216
- long-run comparative statics, 232
- macroeconomic analysis, 191–192, 216–218, 225–229
- manufacturing, effect on, 222–223, 240
- model of two-country growth and flexible exchange rates, 194–196, 204–206, 218
- monetary policy adjustment, 224, 242–243 and money supply and demand, 196
- OPEC savings and consumption decision, 201–202
- perfect foresight assumption, 193, 196
- real price of energy, 195, 211
- shocks, 222, 233–234
- simulation of price setting, 207, 209
- small economy analysis, 185, 192
- supply and demand for dollars, 95 and wages, 211
- wealth, equilibrium distribution of, 206–207, 209, 211–212 and yen, 95
- Oil production and income derived from, 226
- Oil production, domestic. See Oil quantity shock
- Oil quantity shock, 222
  - actual oil production, 226
  - anticipated increase in production, 227
  - current account balance, 239–240
  - deindustrialization, 224
  - discovery of domestic oil reserves, 230, 237–239
  - and disinflation, 230
  - dynamic adjustment, 233–234, 240
  - employment, effect on, 224
  - and goods markets, 227–228, 240
  - gross price elasticities of demand, 227, 230
  - income, effect on, 226, 227, 241
  - long-run comparative statics, 230, 233
  - manufacturing, effect on, 240
  - monetary policy adjustment, 242–243
  - and trade balance, 226
  - unanticipated increase in production, 227
- OPEC. See also Oil prices
  - asset market model, 193
  - balance of payments, 182–184
  - consumption and savings decision, 201–202, 205, 209, 211–212
  - consumption decisions and oil prices, 195
  - deutsche mark, investment in, 182, 184–185
  - dollar, investment in, 185
  - Dutch disease, 215
  - expectations as to exchange rates and spending by, 189
  - expenditure by, 180–181, 183
  - expenditures and balance of payments, 184–185
  - formation of cartel, 221
  - global effect of policies, 193
  - import preferences, 189
  - imports, 181
  - interdependence under flexible exchange rates, 325
  - investment preferences, 189
  - output market equilibrium, 200
  - wages, 203
  - wealth distribution and oil prices (see Oil prices)
- Open-economy model, 262. See also Money-market equilibrium
  - adjustment with fixed price of domestic output, 262
  - adjustment with flexible price of domestic output 274–283
  - equilibrium with rational expectations, 271
  - long-run effects of monetary and fiscal policy, 277–281
  - rational expectations, 270–274, 281–283
  - small open economy (see Small open economy model)
  - stability under static expectations, 268–270
  - static expectations, 262–270, 274–277
  - static expectations and flexible price of domestic output, 274–277
- Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, 56
- Output market equilibrium, 200, 205
- Overshooting model, 89–92
  - anticipated and unanticipated monetary disturbances, 92
  - assumptions of, 85
  - empirical studies, 92
  - equation of exchange rate determination, 91
  - estimation of monetary exchange rate equation, 94
  - implied regression coefficients of competing equations, 103

- Overshooting model (cont.)
 nonzero expected rate of depreciation, 89
 transitory and permanent monetary disturbances, 91
- Payments deficit. See Balance of payments
- Pegged exchange rates, 3, 76
 international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
- Perfect foresight assumption, 193
- Perfect substitutability of bonds. See Portfolio-balance model
- Portfolio-balance model, 61–66, 93–101
 assumptions of, 85
 capital inflow and outflow, 98
 defined, 86
 and deutsche mark appreciation, 63–64 diversification of portfolios, 63–64 domestic small country model, 101 equations, 96–99, 101 estimation of equations, 100
 flexible exchange rates, 61
 foreign small country model, 101 imperfect asset substitutability, 61 implied regression coefficients of
   competing equations, 103
   intervention and currency depreciation, 105 macroeconomic models, 97–98 money demands and wealth, 61 and Mundell-Dornbusch model, 255, 257
   perfect substitutability, 101
   portfolio-diversification model described, 64–65 preferred local habitat, 99 and rational expectations model, 97 realized means and variances of real returns, 61–63
   risk-premium model, 65
   small country assumption, 98
   synthesis of monetary and portfolio-balance equations, 101–102, 104–105 uniform asset preferences, 97, 101
- Portfolio diversification. See also Portfolio-balance model bond portfolios (see Bond portfolios) hedging, 392
 and Tobin tax proposal, 77
- Pound/DM exchange rates
 purchasing power parities, 26
- Pound/dollar exchange rates (see Dollar/pound exchange rates)
- Predictability of exchange rates, 10–11, 15 unanticipated changes, 24
 unpredictability of, 402
- Preferred local habitat model, 85
- Prices
 asset market interdependence under flexible exchange rates, 313–318 average absolute monthly percentage changes, 29 consumer price index (see Consumer price indices)
 and exchange rates, 5, 25–26, 46, 49
 expectation interdependence under flexible exchange rates, 318–323
 and future expectations, 10 goods market interdependence under flexible exchange rates, 313–318 inflation interdependence under flexible exchange rates, 318–325 information and monetary model with rational expectations, 159 and interest rates, long-term, 49
 international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model) and monetary approach, 49
 Mundell-Fleming model, 51
 and news, 27
 oil and nonoil goods, 226 (see also Goods markets; Oil prices)
 OPEC and policy interdependence, 325 predictability of, 15
 purchasing power parities, 32
 stability of fixed vs. flexible exchange rates, 306 supply and demand interdependence under flexible exchange rates, 61, 318–323
 tariffs (see Tariffs)
 time series properties of exchange rates, 27 unpredictability, 10 volatility, 10
 volatility of aggregate price indices, 27 wage-price guidelines (see Wage-price guidelines)
- Productivity/technology trends. See Technology/productivity trends
- Public spending. See Fiscal policy
- Purchasing power parities and commodity price adjustment, 32
 deviations from, 30 Europe, 26, 27
 and invoicing, 389
 monetarist model, 87–88

- monetary approach to exchange, 46
- Mundell-Fleming model, 52, 55
- overshooting model, 91
- rational expectations model, 90
- U.S., 26–27
- Purchasing power parity doctrine, 25, 27, 32
  - excessive exchange rate, 28
- Rational expectations model, 18, 157
  - currency substitution model (see Currency substitution model)
  - market expectations of exchange rate changes, 188–189
  - monetarist model, 88
  - Mundell-Fleming model, 52, 55–56
  - overshooting model, 90–91
  - and portfolio-balance model, 97
  - purchasing power parities, 90
  - and spot exchange rate, 162–164
  - and supply-demand model, 154
- Relative income and currency appreciation, 49
- Reserve requirements on Eurodollar deposits (see Eurodollar market)
- Risk aversion in invoicing (see Invoicing)
- Risk-premium model, 65–67
- Robinson. See Bickerdike-Robinson-Machlup model
- Securities. See Portfolio-balance model
- Services defined, 241–242
- Simulation version of Mark III model. See Mark IV model
- Small country model, 85
- Small open economy model, 287–292
  - domestic monetary disturbance, 299–301
  - fixed exchange rate, 300
  - flexible exchange rate, 301, 304
  - foreign monetary disturbance, 302–303
  - foreign output demand disturbance, 301–302
  - foreign output supply disturbance, 303
  - intervention, optimal, 289, 296–304, 306–307
  - intervention, stable, 295–296
  - intervention, unstable, 294–299
  - leaning against the wind, 301, 303, 304
  - leaning with the wind, 301–304
  - rational expectations systems, 292
- Snake agreement, 27
- Spot exchange rate
  - average absolute monthly percentage, 28
  - currency substitutions, 169
  - and depreciation of currency, 15
  - and expected future exchange rate, 162
  - and forward exchange rates, 13, 18
  - and interest rates, 17, 24
  - and news, 18
  - tax on, proposed, 76–77
  - volatility of, 32
- Stabilization of jointly floating currency area. See Jointly floating currency area
- Stable intervention. See Intervention
- Stagflation, 402
- Sticky price monetary model. See Overshooting model
- Stock market indices
  - mean absolute monthly percentage, 28
  - and volatility of exchange rates, 30
- Stocks and money-market equilibrium. See Money-market equilibrium
- Substitutability of currencies. See Currency substitution model
- Supply and demand for money. See also Supply-demand model
- Bickerdike-Robinson-Machlup model, 124
- Canadian model (see Canada)
- classical money demand theory, 159
- domestic monetary disturbance in small open economy, 299–301
- domestic wealth, increases in, 96
- Eurodollar market (see Eurodollar market)
- foreign exchange market model, 117
- foreign monetary disturbance in small open economy, 302–303
- foreign output demand disturbance in small open economy, 301–302
- foreign output supply disturbance in small open economy, 303
- and inflation rate, 226
- interdependence under flexible exchange rates, 318–323
- and interest rates, 259
- international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
- jointly floating currency area (see Jointly floating currency area)
- monetarist model, 88, 116
- monetary model equation, 87
- and oil prices, 95, 196
- overshooting model, 89–90
- rational expectations model, 90
- and wealth, 259

- Supply constrained economies, 403
  - appreciation of currency, 416
  - arbitrage, 409
  - capital movements, 409
  - central value version of model, 409, 411
  - cleanly floating exchange rates, 414–415
  - defined, 408–409
  - depreciation of currency, 404, 416
  - fiscal policy, 404, 415–416
  - flexible exchange rates, 403
  - goods markets, 404, 409, 411, 415–416
  - incomes policies, 404, 415–416
  - insulation of regions, 403, 414–415
  - model, 404–408
  - policy and output elasticities, 412–414
  - rationing of households, 409–411, 414
  - rationing repercussions, 415
  - supply-side policies, 415
  - technology/productivity trends, 404, 415–416
  - transmission of shocks, 403, 415
  - wage-price guidelines, 404, 415
- Supply-demand model
  - acceleration equation, 129
  - acceleration hypothesis, 118, 126
  - anticipated disturbances in foreign exchanges, 139–141
  - appreciation of currency, 118, 126, 128
  - asset demand functions, 120
  - Bickerdike-Robinson-Machlup model compared, 124
  - borrowing in foreign currency, 151–154
  - capital accounts and current accounts, 124
  - capital flows, 117–118
  - comparative dynamic responses, 130–135
  - comparison of models, 117
  - current account surplus and deficit, 126
  - current accounts, 118, 124, 126
  - decline in foreign demand for domestic assets, 130–131
  - depreciation of currency, 118, 126, 128
  - domestic demand for foreign currency, 119
  - dynamic partial equilibrium model, 142
  - dynamic response with multiple equilibria, 132
  - equilibrium of foreign exchange market, 118, 120
  - foreign demand for domestic currency, 119
  - foreign residents not holding domestic assets, 124, 126
  - general equilibrium condition, 128–130
  - inflation equilibrium with balance of payments, 135
  - J-curve problem, 142
  - linear approximations, 142–151
  - momentary equilibrium in foreign exchange market, 120
  - multiple equilibria and dynamic instability, 127–128
  - once-and-for-all sales, 122–123, 133–134
  - permanent increase in domestic demand for foreign goods, 134–135
  - rational expectations equilibrium, 154
  - rational speculation in foreign exchanges, 135–137
  - short-run equilibrium in foreign exchange market, 118–119
  - short-run equilibrium with no intervention, 120
  - unanticipated disturbances in, 137–138
  - unanticipated disturbances in foreign exchanges, 139
- Supply-side policies in supply constrained economies, 415
- Tariffs
  - Canada, currency devaluation and, 496
  - Canada, protection measures in 1976, 482–483, 493
  - categories of world industry, 476
  - conceptual framework of model, 475, 477–478
  - Corden formula, 479, 492, 496
  - and devaluation of currency, 494–498
  - exchange rate exogeneity, 479
  - exchange rate flexibility, 493, 498
  - exports, effect on, 493
  - foreign tariff exogeneity, 479–480
  - general equilibrium model, 472–472, 493
  - Germany, currency devaluation and, 496
  - Germany, protection measures in 1976, 484–485, 493
  - imperfect substitutability of domestic and foreign goods, 492–493, 497
  - Japan, currency devaluation and, 497
  - Japan, protection measures in 1976, 487
  - model of world production and trade, 474–475
  - Netherlands, currency devaluation and, 497
  - Netherlands, protection measures in 1976, 488–489, 492–493

- nontraded goods, effective protection of, 480–481
- price exogeneity, 478–479
- protection afforded by, 472–473, 498
- ranking of industries, 493, 496–498
- structure of protection in 1976, 481, 492–493
- traded goods, 481
- U.S., currency devaluation and, 497
- U.S., protection measures in 1976, 490–491, 496
- Taxation, 76–77
- Technology/productivity trends
  - supply constrained economies, 404, 415–416
- Tobin tax proposal, 76–77
- Tobin's  $q$ , 192–193
  - asset market equilibrium, 200
- Trade balances. See Goods markets
- Trade barriers
  - nontariff, 27
- Treasury Eurodollar transactions. See Eurodollar market
- Uniform preference model, assumptions of, 85
- United Kingdom
  - current account balances as percent of GNP, 74
  - Dutch disease, 223
  - international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
- United States
  - current account balances and GNP percentage, 73–74
  - current account balances and official intervention, 68
  - current account balances and real interest differentials, 74
  - Eurodollar deposits (see Eurodollar market)
  - German/U.S. government debt, 66
  - imports by compared to OPEC imports, 181
  - interest rate differentials of Germany and Japan compared, 71–72
  - international transmission models (see Mark III model; Mark IV model)
  - monetary growth, 92–93
  - OPEC balance of payments, 182–183
  - tariffs (see Tariffs)
- Unstable intervention. See Intervention
- Volatility of aggregate price indices, 27
- Volatility of exchange rates, 10, 32, 402
  - currency substitution model, 170–171
  - empirical studies, 171
  - flexible exchange rates, 158
  - spot exchange rates, 31
  - and stock market indices, 30
- Volatility of gold prices, 13
- Wage-price guidelines, 402
  - supply constrained economies, 404, 415
- Wages
  - and consumer price index, 216
  - and exchange rate policy, 203
  - and oil prices, 211
  - OPEC wages, 203
  - unemployment and real wages, 216
- Wealth
  - and appreciation of currency, 96
  - and demand for money, 259
  - and equity claims to capital, 206–207
  - and money demand, 61
  - oil prices and equilibrium distribution of, 206–207, 209, 211–212
  - risk-premium model, 65
  - and supply and demand for money, 96
  - transfer from foreign to domestic residents, 96
- Wholesale price index
  - average absolute monthly percentage, 29
  - purchasing power parities, 29–30
- Yen
  - appreciation, 1978, 95
  - depreciation, 1979–1980, 95
  - and oil prices, 95
- Yen/dollar exchange rates (see Dollar/yen exchange rates)