

Index

- Aaron condition, 21, 171n.13
- Actuarial fairness, xxi, 19, 20, 167
- and fertility effect, 103
 - and intergenerational transfers, 93–94
- Adverse selection, xxii, 82, 135, 168
- Agency problem, policy optimization as, 137–46. See also Child-rearing, as pension qualification
- Age structure, xvii–xviii
- aging, xvii, 3–4
- and income growth (per-capita), xviii, 9
 - and policy, 4
 - projected, 4–7
- Altruism, 82
- evidence against, 116
 - and intergenerational transfers, 108, 110
- Anrechnung von Erziehungszeiten* (Germany), 124. See also Kindererziehungszeiten
- APS (actual policy scenario), 154, 157, 158
- Aristotelian ethics, 130
- Assets, and family constitution, 84–90
- Asymmetric information, 135, 138, 144
- Baby boom, 1, 7
- in US, 3, 5, 24–25, 39
- Bank of Italy Biannual Household Survey, 118
- Benefits in kind, for families and children, 41, 51–56
- Bentham, Jeremy, 130–32
- Beveridge, William, xix, 16
- Beveridgean pension system, xix, xx–xxi, 16, 94, 95, 96, 103, 170n.4
- and intergenerational transfers, 93
 - and labor, xxi, 102, 149, 166, 167
- Binmore, K., 130
- Bismarck, Otto von, xxi, 16, 23
- Bismarckian pension system, xxi, 16, 21, 94, 95, 96, 102, 103, 149, 150, 166, 167
- and intergenerational transfers, 93
- British Household Panel Survey, 113
- Causation, direction of, 123, 126
- CESifo Pension Model, 34, 65
- CFP (child-financed pensions), 163–64
- Child benefits, xx, 103, 146
- arguments in favor of, 128–29
 - difficulties in ending, 147
 - and fertility, 104, 105, 112, 123
 - and fertility (reform scenario), 152, 155–56
 - and investment in children, 148
 - and life-cycle decisions, 103–104
 - for parents as government agents, 138–46
 - in reform scenarios, 152–59, 161
 - and saving, 104, 105, 123
 - in social optimum, 134
 - and VAR model for Germany, 126
- Child care, 51–53
- Child-rearing (investing in human capital), as pension qualification, xx, 138–39, 143, 144–46, 151–52, 159, 162–63, 166–67. See also Pension benefits, child-related
- Children, public support for. See Public support for children and families with children
- China, age structure of, xvii
- “Common good,” 130
- Completed fertility, 1, 3, 156

- Constitution(s), 82. See also Family constitutions
- Contraception, and VAR model for Germany, 124–25
- Contraceptive revolution, xx
- “Cost rates,” 24
- Coverage, level and extent of, 15–16
- CPI (consumer price indexation) scenario, 154, 157, 158
- Credit markets, and family constitution, 84–90
- Credit rationing
and child benefits, 146
and family constitution, 116, 117, 118, 120
and life-cycle decisions, 95–97, 102
and personal services, 110
and transfer behavior, 116–20
- Day care, 51–53
- DB (defined benefit schedule), 18, 22–23
- DC (defined contribution schedule), 18, 22
- Debt, and pension fund, 17. See also Implicit debt
- Defined-benefit pension systems, 16
- Defined-contribution pension systems, 16
- Demographic buffer funds, 25, 31
- Demographic variables, and economic policy, 11
- Demography, 1
and fertility, 1–4
population projections, 4–9, 10–11
and US, 37
- Denmark, social security scheme from, 23
- Dependency, economic connotations of, 9–13
- Dependency ratios, 7–9
- Developing countries, high fertility of, xviii
- Domestic interest factor, 87, 89, 91, 110
- Domestic investments, 118
in human capital, 136
- Dutch Socio-Economic Panel, 112
- Dynastic model 105, 121, 126
and child benefits, 105
and credit rationing, 110, 116, 117
and male/female wage rates, 106
and personal services, 109
and relation of income to monetary transfer, 114
and saving, 103, 126
and VAR model for Germany, 126
- Earned income tax credit (EITC), US, 50
- Economist* magazine, on US vs. European age structure, xviii
- Educational subsidies, xx. See also Schooling
- Endogenous growth theories, 150
- Enquête Trois Générations*, 113
- European Union and Europe, xxii. See also France; Germany; Italy; Sweden; United Kingdom
age structure of, xvii, 5–7
baby boom in, 3
central and eastern, 23 fertility and productivity growth in (vs. US), xviii, xix population projection for, 7
- Exchange model, 110, 114
and credit rationing, 117
- Fairness, actuarial, xxi, 19, 20, 93–94, 103, 167
- Families with children. See also Public support for children and families with children and intergenerational transfers, 82 (see also Intergenerational transfers)
- Family arrangements. See Intrafamily arrangements
- Family constitution(s), 82–84, 108–109, 109–10, 116 and assets or credit markets, 84–90
and credit rationing, 116, 117, 118, 120
and Italian transfer behavior, 119 and parental altruism, 110
and public transfer system, 134–35 self-enforcing, 90–92, 120, 133, 143–44
and reform scenarios, 160
and VAR model for Germany, 126
- Female and male wage rates
and life-cycle decisions, 105–108
and VAR model for Germany, 126, 152
- Fertility and fertility rates, xxviii–xix, xx, 1–4, 122, 126 assumptions on, 4, 8, 12
and child benefits, 104, 105, 112, 123
control of (and child subsidy), 58 decline in, 3, 4, 148 and dependency ratios, 12 elasticity of, 80, 125, 163 and female wage rate, 106
and financial viability of public pension systems, 111

- and intergenerational transfers, 111–12
- and life-cycle decisions (pension effects), 98, 98–99, 100, 102, 103
- and pension coverage, 149
- and pension deficit, 149
- and pension reform, xx, 152, 155–57, 159–62, 163, 168
- replacement level of, 3
- in VAR model for Germany, 123–26
- and wage rate, 112
- Fictitious contributions
 - in Italy, 63
 - in Sweden, 64
- Fondo Pensioni Lavoratori Dipendenti* (Italy), 28–30
- Forcing contract, 134, 137, 143, 182n.7
- France
 - child-care benefits in, 53
 - child-related monetary benefits in, 43, 44, 46, 47
 - child-related pension benefits in, 61–62, 71, 74–80
 - health care for children in, 55
 - and implicit taxes, 35, 37
 - population projection for, 7
 - Régime Général* in, 27–28, 61
 - and VAR model for Germany, 126
 - youth dependency ratio in, 8
- Free-riders, and logic of pension schemes, 127–28
- FRP (fertility-related pensions), 160, 161
- Fully funded pension scheme, 17, 20
- German Socio-Economic Panel (GSOEP), 176n.23, 177n.26
- Germany
 - child-care benefits in, 53
 - child-related monetary benefits in, 43, 44, 47
 - child-related pension benefits in, 60–61, 71, 72, 74–80
 - fertility in, 3, 155–57, 160–61, 163–64
 - fertility assumptions for, 12
 - health care for children in, 55
 - immigration into, 4
 - implicit taxes in, 36
 - Kindererziehungszeiten* in, 60–61, 61, 159
 - population projection for, 7
 - and relationship between income and child-related cash benefits, 50
 - Rentenversicherung* in, 23, 26, 60
 - schooling expenditure in, 55
 - Germany, West
 - child-benefit effects in, 123
 - reform proposal for, 159–64, 168
 - VAR model for, 123–126, 152
 - Go-it-aloners (family constitution), 86
 - and child benefits, 105
 - and credit rationing, 110, 118
 - and life-cycle decisions, 86, 87, 94–103
 - and wage effects, 106, 108
 - Golden rule of capital accumulation, modified, 131, 133
 - Government, in principal-agent relationship, 138–44
 - Government failure, vs. market failure, 165
 - Growth, income
 - and financial viability of public pension systems, xvii–xviii, 111
 - and pension crisis, 165
 - and pension policy, 149, 165
 - Growth theories, endogenous, 150
 - Harsanyi, J. C., 130
 - Health care for children, public provision of, 55–56
 - Hobbes, Thomas, 130
 - “Home responsibilities,” in UK pension system, 60, 76
 - Human capital, xviii, 136. See also Child-rearing, as pension qualification in endogenous growth theories, 150, 184n.4
 - and existing pension schemes, 148
 - and indirect taxation, 168
 - underinvestment in, 148
 - Immigration
 - constant flows of assumed, 8
 - fertility decline offset by, 4
 - Implicit debt, in public pension schemes, 22, 33
 - and child-related pension benefits, 79–80
 - inherited from past policies (Italy), 37
 - Implicit subsidy, 19, 96–97
 - and deficit/surplus, 103
 - and fertility, 99, 121, 126
 - and life-cycle decisions, 102
 - and life-cycle theory, 102–103
 - Implicit tax, 19, 32–39, 58, 96–97
 - and deficit/surplus, 103
 - and fertility, 99, 121

- Implicit tax (cont.)
 and life-cycle decisions, 100, 102
 and life-cycle theory, 102–103
 Inaugural gains, 22, 35
 Income, and transfer behavior, 114–16
 Income effect, and substitution effect, 112
 “Income pooling,” 116
 Indexation
 in German pension system, 27, 154
 in Japan, 31
 in US Social Security scheme, 24
 Individualism, methodological, 137
 In-kind benefits, for families and children, 41, 51–56
 Interest factor, domestic, 87, 89, 91, 110
 Interest rate, and total income (industrialized countries), 21
 Intergenerational insurance, 17–18
 Intergenerational social welfare function, and actual vs. potential persons, 137
 Intergenerational transfer (evidence), 111 macro-data, 120–26
 micro-data, 111–20
 Intergenerational transfer (theory), 81–82, 111
 and constitutional theory of family, 82– 92 (see also Family constitution) from disparities of treatment, 39 in fertility-related pension benefits, 162
 and implicit taxes, 34
 and life-cycle adjustments, 81 (see also Life-cycle decisions) and optimal pension policy, 134–35
 and parental altruism, 110
 in pay-as-you-go pensions, 16, 17–18, 22
 and personal services, 109–10, 135
 and public intervention, 93–108
 and uncertainty, 108–109
 Intrafamily arrangements, xxi–xxii and credit-rationing, 116–20 exchanges of money for personal services, 109, 114–16
 vs. public programs, 134–35, 144
 transfers, 82, 112–16
 Intragenerational transfers, 39
 Investments
 domestic, 118, 136
 in human capital, 168 (see also Child-rearing, as pension qualification) Italy
 child-benefit effects in, 123
 child-related monetary benefits in, 43, 44, 46, 47
 child-related pension benefits in, 62–63, 71, 74–80
 credit-rationing and monetary transfers in, 118–20
 dependency ratios in, 8
Fondo Pensioni Lavoratori Dipendenti in, 28–30
 fertility in, 3
 fertility assumptions for, 12
 health care for children in, 55
 and implicit tax profile, 35, 37, 39 pension scheme in, 23
 population projection for, 7
 and relationship between income and child-related cash benefits, 50, 51 retirement age in, 39
 and VAR model for Germany, 126
 Japan
 age structure of, xvii, 6–7
 child-benefit effects in, 123
 child-related monetary benefits in, 43, 44, 47
 child-related pension benefits in, 65, 71, 74–79
 dependency ratios in, 8
 fertility decline in, 3–4 fertility and productivity growth of (vs.
 US), xviii, xix
 health care for children in, 55
 implicit tax rates in, 37 inaugural gains in, 35 life expectancy in, 4
 parental school expenses in, 53 population aging in, 3–4
 population projection for, 7
 public pension scheme in, 31–32, 65
 and relationship between income
 and child-related cash benefits, 50, 51
 and VAR model for Germany, 126
 Kant, Immanuel, 130
Kindererziehungszeiten (Germany), 60–61,
 61, 159
 Laissez-faire equilibria, 132–33, 136
 Life-cycle decisions, 102–103
 and constitutional theory of family, 82– 92

- and intergenerational transfers, 81 (see also at Intergenerational transfer)
- and parental altruism, 110
- and personal services, 109–10
- and public intervention, 93–108
- and uncertainty, 108–109
- Life-cycle theory or model, 83, 86, 121
 - and child benefits, 105
 - and exchange model, 114
 - and male/female wage rates, 106
 - and personal services, 109
 - on public pensions and household saving, 111
- Life expectancy
 - increase in assumed, 4, 8
 - and policy, 13
 - rise in, xxii, 4, 148
 - uncertainty over, 11
- Lifetime utility, 84
- Macro-data evidence, on intergenerational transfers, 120–26
- Male and female wage rates
 - and fertility, 112
 - and life-cycle decisions, 105–108
 - and VAR model for Germany, 126
- Marginal player, 87, 116
- Market(s)
 - and individual decisions, xx, xxi–xxii
 - and public intervention, 151
 - and reform scenarios, 160
 - and social optimum, 132
 - in three pillars of coverage, 19
- Market failure, vs. government failure, 165
- Methodological individualism, 137
- Micro-data evidence, on intergenerational transfers, 111–20
- Migration, and uncertainty, 4, 11
- Mill, John Stuart, 130–32
- Modified golden rule of capital accumulation, 131, 33
- Monetary benefits for families with children, 42–46
- Moral hazard
 - and direct transfer schemes, 168
 - and family-based vs. market- or state-based schemes, xxii
 - and intrafamily transfers, 82
 - and parent as agent, 141
 - in population policy, 136–37
 - and public compassion as justification, xix
- Mortality, and policy, xxii
- NEW (no early withdrawal) scenario, 154, 157, 158
- NEW+CPI scenario, 154, 157, 158
- North-South divide, xvii
- Notionally defined contributions (NDC), 18, 64, 159
- “Occupational pensions,” 112, 146
- Old-age dependency ratios, 7–9, 11
- Optimal policy, 147–48
 - as principal-agent problem, 137–46
 - in simple framework, 129–35
- Panel Study of Income Dynamics, 113
- Parents, as government agents, 138–40
- Pareto optimality, 34
 - and quasi-Pareto criterion, 91
- Pay-as-you-go pension systems, xvii–xviii, 16–17, 144, 165
 - and implicit tax, 32–33 (see also Implicit tax)
 - and intergenerational redistribution, 22
 - pure, 20
 - as unchangeable, 147
- Pension(s), private, and actuarial fairness, 19
- Pension(s), public, 15–19
 - and age structure, xvii–xviii
 - algebra of, 19–23
 - benefits vs. contributions in, 16
 - Beveridgean system of, xix, xx–xxi, 16, 93, 94, 95, 96, 102, 103, 149, 166, 170n.4
 - Bismarckian system of, xxi, 16, 21, 93, 94, 95, 96, 102, 103, 149, 150, 166
 - coverage, 15–16
 - deficit, 103, 124–26, 163–64
 - and “disincentive to work,” xxi
 - causation of effect on fertility and saving, 123, 126
 - estimating effects of, 112
 - and family constitution, 135
 - and fertility, xviii–xix, xx, 122, 126, 149 (see also Fertility and fertility rates)
 - in financial crisis, 1, 165
 - and growth, xvii–xviii, 111, 165
 - and human capital investment, 148 (see also Human capital)
 - and implicit tax, 19, 32–39, 58, 96–97 (see also Implicit tax)

- Pension(s), public (cont.)
 incentive effects of, xx justification(s) for, xix–xxii, 127–28, 147 (see also Pensions, public, in social optimum) and life-cycle decisions, 93–103 (see also Life-cycle decisions) and parents as agents of government, 143–46 and private investment, 158 and productivity growth, xviii questions on, 127, 129 reductions in assumed, 11 and retirement age, xxii, 39, 148, 167–68 and saving, 111, 122, 126, 127–28, 149 (see also Saving, household) in selected countries, 23–32
 in social optimum, 129–35
 unalterability of, 147 and voluntary saving, 112
- Pension benefits, child-related, 57–59, 65–66, 127 baseline case effects of, 67–72 and departure from baseline (alternative work patterns), 67, 72–75 and departure from baseline (different earning abilities), 67, 75–77 and departure from baseline (different numbers of children), 67, 77–79 and existing entitlements, 79 in policy proposals, 138–39, 143–46, 151–52, 159, 162–63, 166 and public debt, 79–80
 in selected countries, 59–65
 women’s wage profiles and stylized biographies in assessing, 66–67
- Pension policy reform (from anew), 127, 147
 and growth rate, 149–50
 and human capital, 136
 laissez-faire solution, 132–33, 136 and moral hazard (population policy), 136–37 optimization of in simple framework, 129–35 parallel-scheme systems (with child benefits), 134, 143, 144–46, 151–52, 162, 166 with parents as child-rearing agents of government, 138–46, 166–67 (see also Child-rearing) and uncertainty over individual actions, 136
- Pension policy reform (from existing), 148–49, 159, 165 with aim of parental investment in children, 145, 151, 168 (see also Child-rearing, as pension qualification) as centered on retirement/work disincentive over disincentive to have children, 167 cutting back, 147, 165–66 and existing flaws, 148 and fertility effects, 155–57, 168
 and growth rate, 151
 increased intervention, 166
 linking of pension entitlement to earning abilities of own children, 143, 162–64 linking of pension entitlement to individual fertility, 159–62 and saving effects, 157–58, 168
 scenarios for, 152–55, 160
 “Pension wealth,” disparities in, 111
- Personal services, and intergenerational transfers, 108, 109–10, 113–15, 135
- Pigovian subsidy, 134
- Policy optimization. See Optimal policy
- Population aging
 in Japan, 3–4
 as problem, xvii
 in US, 3
- Population policy, moral hazard in, 136–37
- Population profile, determination of, 130–31
- Population projections, 4–9, 10–11
- Population pyramid, 5
- Predefined benefit schedule (DB), 18, 22–23
- Predefined contribution schedule (DC), 18, 22
- Pre-funded pensions, 16
- Principal-agent problem, policy optimization as, 137–46
- Privatization, of old-age Social Security (US), 25
- Productivity growth, and public pensions, xviii
- Projected age structures, 4–7
- Public expenditure, and dependency ratios, 9–13
- Public housing, low-cost, 51

- Public intervention, and intergenerational transfers, 93–108
- Public pensions. See Pension(s), public
- Public support for children and families with children, 41–42. See also Child benefits
- calculation of value of, 56
- as cash benefits, 42–51
- as in-kind benefits, 51–56
- and parents with different earnings, 47–51
- and parents with different numbers of children, 46–47
- Public support for the old. See Pension(s), public
- Quasi-Pareto criterion, 91
- Reform of pension policy. See at Pension policy reform
- Régime Général* (France), 27–28, 61
- Rentensversicherung* (Germany), 23, 26, 60
- Rent subsidies, 51
- Replacement level of fertility, 3
- Replacement rate, 23–24
- and German pension system, 27
- Retirement age, xxii, 39, 148, 167–68
- Risk
- intergenerational allocation of, 18
- and pension policy, 146, 152
- Risk aversion, 138, 146
- Samuelson, Paul, 81–82, 84
- Saving, household, xiii–xix, 111, 122, 126
- and child benefits, 104, 105, 123
- and financial viability of public pension systems, 111
- and logic of pension schemes, 127–28
- and pension coverage, 149
- and pension deficit, 149
- and pension reform, 157–58, 168
- and VAR model for Germany, 126
- Scandinavian countries, multi-pillar schemes in, 23
- Schooling, as in-kind benefit, 53–55
- Single mothers, 47, 71–72, 178n.35
- “Social assistance,” 43
- and child benefits, 48
- “Social contrivances,” Samuelson on, 81–82
- “Social insurance,” 16, 21, 23, 57–58
- and child-related pension benefits, 58, 62, 79
- in France, 27
- in Germany, 26
- and married woman’s labor force participation, 71
- Social optima, 130–32
- “Social security,” 16, 23, 57
- and child-related pension benefits, 79, 79
- and married women, 71
- Social Security system (US), 23–25
- and child-rearing benefits, 59
- Social security tax, 95. See also Implicit tax
- Spouse and survivor benefits, 58–60, 70
- State, and intergenerational transfers, 82
- Subsidy, xxi
- educational, 168
- implicit, 19, 96–97 (see also Implicit subsidy)
- Pigovian, 134
- via price system, 183n.23
- in support of children and families, 41
- Substitution effect, and income effect, 112
- Supplementary earnings-related pension benefits (SERPS), for UK, 25
- Survivor and spouse benefits, 58–60, 70
- Sweden
- child-related monetary benefits in, 43, 44, 47
- child-related pension benefits in, 64, 71, 74–80
- fertility in, 3
- health care for children in, 55
- implicit tax rates in, 37
- parental school expenses in, 53
- population projection for, 7
- public pension scheme in, 23, 30
- and relationship between income and child-related cash benefits, 50
- schooling expenditure in, 55
- total dependency ratios in, 9
- youth dependency ratio in, 8
- Tax(ation)
- Beveridge pension scheme as, xx–xxi, 166, 167
- implicit, 19, 32–39, 58, 96–97 (see also Implicit tax)
- social security, 16, 95
- Tax allowances, as public support for children and families, 41, 43, 50, 53
- Tax-to-GDP ratio, 11

- Three pillars of pension coverage, 19, 35
- Total dependency ratios, 7–9
 - youth- vs. old-age ratios in, 9–10
- Total fertility rate, 1, 3, 155
- Transfers in kind, for families and children, 41, 51–56
- Uncertainty
 - over individual behavior, 136
 - and intergenerational transfers, 108–109
 - of pensions vs. child benefits, 146
- United Kingdom, 23, 25–26, 60
 - and Beveridgean system, xix (see also Beveridgean pension system)
 - child-benefit effects in, 123
 - child-related monetary benefits in, 43, 44, 46, 47
 - child-related pension benefits in, 60, 70, 71, 74–79
 - day-care costs in, 53
 - earnings-related tier (SERPS) in, 23
 - fertility in, 12
 - health care for children in, 55
 - implicit taxes in, 37
 - pension scheme of, 23
 - population projection for, 7
 - private school role in, 54
 - redistribution through public pensions in, 23
 - and relationship between income and child-related cash benefits, 50, 50–51
 - schooling expenditure in, 54
 - total dependency ratios in, 9
 - and VAR model for Germany, 126
 - welfare system redesign in, 48
 - youth dependency ratio in, 8
- United States
 - age structure of, xvii
 - aging population in, 3
 - baby boom in, 3, 5, 24–25, 39
 - child-benefit effects in, 123
 - child-related monetary benefits in, 46, 47
 - and child-related pension benefits, 59, 70, 71, 74–79
 - day-care costs in, 53
 - dependency ratios in, 8
 - fertility in, 1, 3
 - and fertility and productivity growth (vs. European Union or Japan), xviii, xix
 - health care for children in, 55
 - immigration into, 4
 - and implicit taxes, 35, 37
 - population projection for, 5
 - private school role in, 54
 - redistribution through public pensions in, 23
 - and relationship between income and child-related cash benefits, 50
 - Social Security scheme in, 23–25
 - tax allowances in, 43
 - total dependency ratios in, 9
 - and VAR model for Germany, 126
 - welfare system redesign in, 48
- Utilitarianism, 130–32, 137
- Utility, lifetime, 84
- Vector autoregressive (VAR) model, for West Germany, 123–26, 152
- Welfare assessments, and actual vs. potential persons, 137
- “Welfare to work”
 - in Italy, 50
 - in United Kingdom, 43, 50
 - in United States, 50
- West Germany. See Germany, West
- Youth dependency ratio, 8