I am grateful to the Modern Language Association for permission to reprint my article, “The Consolation of Physics: Tennyson’s Thermodynamic Solution” (PMLA 117, no. 3 [May 2002]:449–464), which is revised and included as chapter 1 of this book.

Acknowledgments

Writing a book is hard. Writing a first book while raising two small-but-fabulous children and teaching full time would have been impossible if it weren't for the help of others. In addition to Muhlenberg College, which has repeatedly provided financial support, I'd like to express special thanks to the many individuals who contributed their energies to this project: To Heidi Reicher and Francesca Coppa for their truly energetic input and unfailing enthusiasm. To Russel Kauffman for our inspiring collaborations and the steadfast interest that always helped keep the ideas flowing. To Jefferson Pooley and Jeremy Teissere for the discussions that kept me on task and up to date. To Steve Lewis and Charlotte Zales for their painstaking attention to the final drafts. To my mom, Estelle "Teddy" Gold, who not only did so much with the kids, but also proofread the whole. And more love and thanks than I can express to my spouse, Andrew, for his unceasing and expansive support and for never letting me forget that it really does matter.
