PART I            Setting Out   1

UNIT 1            What Is Semantics?   5

1.1    Leading Questions of Linguistics   5

1.2    Parts of Language   6

1.3    Kinds of “Meaning”   7

Exercises   15

UNIT 2            The Domain of Semantics   21

Review   21

2.1    Semantic Facts   22

2.2    Semantics as a Theory of Semantic Knowledge   26

Exercises   31

UNIT 3            The Form of Semantic Theory   33

Review   33

3.1    Semantics Interprets Syntactic Structure   34

3.2    Statements of Meaning   38

3.3    From Meaning to Truth   40

Exercises   45

UNIT 4            Introducing T-Theories   47

Review   47

4.1    T-Theory for (a Fragment of) Japanese   48

4.2    A Sample Derivation   51

4.3    Using Substitution   54

4.4    Labeled Bracket Notation   56

Exercises 61
Suggested Readings for Part I 65

PART II                      Building a Semantic Theory 67

UNIT 5                      Simple Sentences 71

Review 71
5.1 Analyzing the Sentence 73
5.2 Incorporating Names, Predicates, and Simple Sentences 78
5.3 A New Theory with Simple Sentences 81

Exercises 83

UNIT 6                      Extending the Theory I 85

Review 85
6.1 Lexical and Phrasal Rules 86
6.2 Extending the Semantics 86
6.3 A Sample Derivation 89
6.4 Our Current Theory 91

Exercises 93

UNIT 7                      Extending the Theory II 95

Review 95
7.1 The “Fit” of Semantic Rules 95
7.2 Figuring Out New Rules 97
7.3 Purely Grammatical Elements 99
7.4 A Change in Our Metalanguage 102
7.5 Our Current Theory 104

Exercises 107

UNIT 8                      Names and Predicates 115

Review 115
8.1 Singular Terms vs. General Terms 116
8.2 Object-Dependent vs. Object-Independent Truth Conditions 117

8.3 Acquiring Singular vs. General Terms 118

8.4 Two Puzzles about Proper Nouns 120

Exercises 125

UNIT 9                    More on Predicates    129

Review 129

9.1 Predicates and Parts of Speech 129

9.2 Valence 130

9.3 Predicates in Other Categories 135

9.4 Valence and Structure 143

9.5 Our Current Theory 144

Exercises 145

UNIT 10                    Semantic Components    159

Review 159

10.1 Componential Rules 160

10.2 Attributing Semantic Rules to Speakers 165

Exercises 175

UNIT 11                    Participant Roles    183

Review 183

11.1 Introducing Participant Roles 184

11.2 Participant Roles, Predicates, and Scripts 185

11.3 Verb Alternations 187

11.4 Participant Roles and Structures 189

Exercises 195

UNIT 12                    Events and Adverbs    203

Review 203

12.1 Sentences Describe Events 204

12.2 Incorporating Events 205

12.3 Incorporating Adverbs 210

12.4 Our Current Theory 213

Exercises 215

UNIT 13	More on Proper Nouns 225
	Review 225
	13.1 Proper Nouns as Complex Descriptions 226
	13.2 Puzzles for Proper Nouns as Complex Descriptions 230
	13.3 How Do Names Get Linked to Things? 233
	Exercises 237
	Suggested Readings for Part II 241
PART III	Semantic Theory and the World 243
UNIT 14	Tense and Other Times 247
	Review 247
	14.1 Tense 248
	14.2 Incorporating Tense into Our Theory 250
	14.3 More on Tense 254
	14.4 Our Current Theory 258
	Exercises 261
UNIT 15	Modals and Other Worlds 265
	Review 265
	15.1 Modality 266
	15.2 Incorporating Modality into Our Theory 268
	15.3 In What Sense Possible? 272
	15.4 Our Current Theory 275
	Exercises 277
UNIT 16	Scope and Entailment 283
	Review 283
	16.1 Introducing Scope 284
	16.2 Introducing Entailment 290
	Exercises 297

UNIT 17	Variable Reference and Context 303
	Review 303
	17.1 Introducing Variable-Reference Terms 303
	17.2 Truth with Respect to Context Situations 305
	17.3 Context Situations as Sequences 308
	17.4 Our Current Theory 312
	 Exercises 315
 UNIT 18	 Indexicals 321
	Review 321
	18.1 Indexical Proforms 322
	18.2 Incorporating Indexicals 324
	18.3 Demonstrative Uses of Pronouns 328
	18.4 Indexicality in Other Phrases 329
	18.5 Our Current Theory 330
	 Exercises 333
 UNIT 19	 “Displaced” Elements 341
	Review 341
	19.1 Displacement and Compositionality 342
	19.2 Displacement and Context 344
	19.3 Understanding Dislocation Sentences 346
	19.4 Understanding Displacement 349
	19.5 Displacement and Information Structure 350
	19.6 Our Current Theory 355
	 Exercises 357
 UNIT 20	 Quantifiers I (Sets) 361
	Review 361
	20.1 Introducing Quantifier Phrases 361
	20.2 Sets and Membership 363
	20.3 Relations between Sets 366
	20.4 Operations on Sets 368
	20.5 Set Cardinality 370
	 Exercises 373

UNIT 21	Quantifiers II (Determiners) 375
	Review 375
	21.1 Determiners 375
	21.2 Determiners as Relations between Sets 377
	21.3 Lexical Rules for Determiners 378
	Exercises 385
UNIT 22	Quantifiers III (Rules) 391
	Review 391
	22.1 Rules for Quantified Sentences: First Pass 392
	22.2 Rules for Quantified Sentences: Second Pass 395
	22.3 Rules for Quantified Sentences: Final Pass 399
	22.4 Our Current Theory 403
	Exercises 407
	Suggested Readings for Part III 413
PART IV	Semantic Theory and the Mind 415
UNIT 23	T-Theories as Formal Systems 419
	Review 419
	23.1 Examples of Formal Systems 420
	23.2 T-Theories as Formal Systems 426
	23.3 The Importance of Formal Systems 430
	Exercises 435
UNIT 24	Knowing a Semantic Theory 439
	Review 439
	24.1 Graphs and Formulas 440
	24.2 Grammars and T-Theories 442
	Exercises 447
UNIT 25	The Nature of Semantic Values 449
	Review 449
	25.1 A Naïve View of Semantic Values 450

25.2 One Event or Two? 451
25.3 Water or Tea? 456
25.4 The Internal Nature of Semantics 457

Exercises 459
